Movieland Mourns Death of Famous Screen Player

Theodore Roberts' End Unexpected Despite His Long Illness

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 15 — Movieland today mourned the passing of one of its most eminent figures, the colorful and picturesque Theodore Roberts, "grand old man" of the screen.

Endeared to the hearts of millions in every section of the western world through his human and humorous characterizations of the silver-sheet, Roberts was among those fortunate players who are likewise beloved of their colleagues and business associates.

The veteran actor died at his home here late yesterday. He was 67 years old. Death was caused by euremia, superinduced by an attack of the grippe. Although his health had been failing for many years, his passing was unexpected and shocked his many friends in the cinema colony. He had been confined to his bed a little more than a week and his death followed a slight operation.

The noted actor had been in ill health for almost five years. He was practically forced to give up his screen work several years ago.

In the interim he has played a number of engagements in vaudeville and on the theatrical stage.

Roberts was born in San Francisco October 8, 1861.

28 Shovels Ordered from Osgood Co. by New York Company; First Delivered

Yard and Half Machines Will Be Used in Building 21-Mile Long Aqueduct in Gotham; Order To Be Completed by June 1

The first of 28 compressed air shovels sold to a New York construction company by the Osgood Co. today had been delivered, officials of the company announced.

Delivery on the balance of the order is to be made by June 1, it was stated.

The compressed air shovels are one and one-half yard machines and are being purchased by Patrick McGovern, Inc., construction engineers of New York City.

The Marion product is to be used to build a new aqueduct 19 feet in diameter. The aqueduct will start at Yonkers, New York, run through the Bronx and under the river, finishing at Long Island.

The tunnel will be from 300 to 700 feet under ground and will be 21 miles long.

The machines to be used in the work will be the same as used on the Moffat tunnel in Colorado.

CHRISTMAS PLANNED FOR MARION'S POOR

Donations of Supplies and Money To Be Assembled by Red Cross

All who wish to assist in bringing Christmas cheer to needy families of the city are asked to bring or send their gifts of food or money with which to buy supplies to the offices of the Marion County Red Cross chapter in the Eagles temple as soon as possible. This request is made in a statement issued today by Miss Margaret L. Dowd, secretary of the local Red Cross organization.

Baskets will be filled with supplies and distributed about the city on the day before Christmas by Boy Scouts, Miss Dowd stated. Many families where sickness or unemployment exists must depend upon charity if their children are to have a merry Christmas, she said.

Toys in good condition will also be needed. Contributions should be made early next week, Miss Dowd stated, in order that the Red Cross may know how many families may be aided.

Employers in need of men are also asked to inform the local Red Cross chapter. A list of men in need of employment is maintained by Miss Dowd and she is always able to find men for vacancies.

MAN IS CHARGED WITH BEATING WIFE, STEPSON

Cleveland, Dec. 15—After allegedly battering his 40-year-old wife into insensibility with a heavy hammer and attacking his step-son, early today, William P. Higgins, 56, suffered a stroke of apoplexy and was near death at Lakewood hospital. His wife, Edith, who was taken to the same hospital, is not expected to live.

The step-son, Walter Ferguson, 20, escaped from the older man's attack when he jumped from a second story window, he said. He ran to police and summoned aid.

Ferguson and the neighbors could assign no motive for the attack.

NEW EDIFICE TO BE OPENED BY SCIENTISTS

Arrange for Services Sunday in Auditorium of Completed Structure

DEDICATION LATER

Church Home Climax to More Than 30 Years' Progress of Congregation

When the new edifice of First Church of Christ, Scientist, East Church st. and Mt. Vernon av, is opened to the public for the first time Sunday morning, it will climax more than 30 years of achievement upon the part of the local congregation.

With the exception of a few additions to be made next week, work upon the church, both exterior and interior, will be complete for Sunday's opening.

Contrary to the custome of the majority of churches, the opening Sunday will be outstanding only in the simplicity of the services. Instead of an elaborate program to celebrate the occasion the Scientists will gather quietly in the new church for their regular service of morning worship at 10:30 o'clock. The same service will be repeated at 7:30 o'clock at night.

Seating Capacity

The main auditorium of the church, which is decidedly unusual in its quiet color tone of pale green glazed with white, has a seating capacity of 360 persons. The Sunday school rooms, located in the basement of the church, will comfortably accomodate about 400.

Dedication of the new church will not take place until the church indebtedness is cleared, that is, until the new church, in its entirety, has been paid for. White Sunday will be the first time the main auditorium of the church has been opened for service, meetings the last few months have been held in the church basement, since the old frame church, located on the present site, was moved.

Style of Architecture

The church is uniquely designed in a Grecian style of architecture, embodying the refined Corinthian type of column. The walls and ceiling of the main auditorium, painted an unusual shade of pale green, give a restful and quiet atmosphere to the room. The pews are in the same

HITS CHRISTMAS

Soviet Government Seeks To Abolish Holiday Observance

MOSCOW, Dec. 15—A movement to abolish the Christmas holiday is under way here today. It is part of a general campaign by the Soviets to combat such festival seasons as have a religious connection.

The trade department today ordered all Christmas trees, toys and decorations removed from the windows of government owned stores by tomorrow night upon penalty of fine or imprisonment for the managers.

The managers who permit festive displays will be "disciplined" by the government.

C., D. & M. TAX VALUE CUT BY STATE BOARD

Marion County Officials Surprised by Word from Commission

REDUCED $124,490

Notice Comes After Courts Had Refused To Grant Plea for Decrease

That the state tax commission has reduced the valuation of the Marion county property of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. by $124,490 was revealed today when the commission certified the 1927 valuation to County Auditor Earl E. Thomas.

Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann was at a loss today to explain the act of the commission, due to the fact that two courts had ruled against the electric company in a fight to force the tax commission to reduce the valuation. The court battle was instituted by the C. D. & M. after the tax commission had placed a valuation of $3,361,211 on the entire holdings of the electric company. Officials of the electric company held that the valuation of the commission was $300,000 too high.

Upheld by Appeals Court

When the case was brought into common pleas court here Judge George B. Scofield ruled against the electric company, holding that the commission's valuation was satisfactory. This decision was appealed to the district court of appeals which upheld the lower court.

Wiedemann stated today that the commission reduced the valuation, on which taxes are based, without notifying county officials of its act. Wiedemann regarded the procedure as "strange" in view of the court decisions.

The 1927 valuation of the electric company's property in Marion county

FIGHT UNRESTRICTED APPROVAL OF PACT

Irreconcilable Group, Led by Reed and Moses, Sponsors Resolution

Washington, Dec. 15—The battle against unrestricted approval of the Kellogg multilateral anti-war treaty came into the open in the senate today with the old irreconcilable group sponsoring a resolution explaining America's pending ratification.

The resolution sponsored by Senators James A. Reed, Democrat of Missouri, and George H. Moses, Republican of New Hampshire, would set fourth four terms under which the treaty would be ratified by the senate. These were that the treaty:

1—Imposes no obligation on the United States to resort to coercive or punitive measures against any offending nation;

2—Does not impose any limitation upon the Monroe Doctrine or the traditional policies of the United States;

3—Does not impair the right of the United States to defend its territory, possessions, trade or commerce; and

4—Does not obligate the United States to the conditions of any treaty to which the United States is not a party.

President Coolidge, meanwhile, has let it be known that he opposes any reservation to the treaty. He also has directed opposition to any such modification of expectation. The president was said to feel such action would tend to reiterate the American reservations already given the treaty when it was sent with the Kellogg notes for ratification.

VALUATION IS PROTESTED BY OHIO CITIES

Move Designed To Thwart Plan of Logan Gas To Carry Up Case

OBJECT TO "OVERHEADS"

Amount Is About $200,000 Greater Than Valuation Supported by Cities

Protest against the $10,709,077 tentative valuation placed upon the properties of the Logan Gas Co. by the state utilities commission, for rate-making purposes, was filed today with the commission at Columbus. This valuation was fixed in an order issued by the commission Nov. 19, last. The protest was filed on behalf of numerous municipalities and rural communities of Ohio served by this company.

The protest was signed by Assistant General Grant E. Monser, Jr., representing the state and acting as special counsel for the city of Marion; City Solicitor C. S. Huffman, Ashland; City Solicitor Kenneth P. Fox, Bellevue; City Solicitor James W. Miller, Bucyrus; City Solicitor Chance Dewald, Crestline; City Solicitor Wesley Grills, Lorain; City Solicitor L. S. Wise, Willard, and Attorney M. D. Hughes, as special counsel for the city of Athens.

To Block Gas Move

Monser explained that the protest was filed with a view to thwarting any plan that counsel for the Logan Gas Co. might have for carrying the rate case into the federal court on a claim of confiscation of property. He pointed out that this protest would serve to keep the case in the Ohio courts and would insure a final disposition of the rate controversy at a much earlier date and with materially less expense to the state and to the protesting municipalities and rural communities than if the case were taken into the federal court.

Declaring that the various cities, villages and rural districts which are protesting the efforts of the company to obtain the commission's approval of an increased rate schedule are

BOY SCOUTS PLAN FOR WINTER CAMP

Five-Day Period To Open for Harding Area on Dec. 31

With a New Year's eve watch party to begin the opening event, the annual winter camping period at Camp John A. Owens of the Harding Boy Scout Area will get under way Dec. 31, continuing for five days.

The limit on the number of scouts attending the camp has been set at 20, by Scout Executive W. C. Brown. Only boys advanced in the art of scouting will be accepted, according to Brown. In addition to Mr. Brown, the camp staff will be made up of Scoutmaster Wilbur Symes and Jack Melvin. William "Mack" McNamara will handle the pots and pans.

Banks will be placed in the new dining room constructed last spring. This room has a fireplace that is expected to be the scene of many unusual and stirring events. If the weather man is good enough to provide snow and ice during that period, Mr. Brown is planning a varied program of snow games and skating for the scouts. Football and scout activities will also be held.

A large share of candidates to be named to be initiated into the Tuscora Order of Indians, the camp fire society.

Among those who have enrolled to date are Carl Lesher of Mt. Gilead, Karl Bowers, Cecil Bowers, Clarence and Bernard

JAIL IS CHARGED

CORONER WILL CHECK STORY OF HELDMAN

Finds Certain Discrepancies and Asks Arrest on Suspicion

HELD IN CANTON JAIL

Sheriff Convinced Mrs. Heldman, Fearn's Slayer, Took Life

Canton, Dec. 15—Wilbur O. Heldman, 27-year-old husband of Margaret Heldman, the alleged "phantom gun woman" who was shot and killed as she was enroute to surrender herself for the murder of Vernard Fearn, was arrested shortly before noon today and placed in county jail.

Coroner T. C. McQuate, upon whose order Heldman was arrested is to question him this afternoon, it was said.

Mrs. Heldman was shot as she and her husband were driving to the sheriff's office Thursday night. Heldman says she shot herself and Coroner McQuate confirmed this by pronouncing the death a suicide. He said today, however, that there appeared to be certain discrepancies in Heldman's story and asked his arrest on suspicion.

Relatives of the dead girl, including her sister, Mrs. Roy Pierce of Canton; a brother, Joseph Horner of Duluth, Pa.; and her father, Matthew Horner of Washington, D. C., have declared that her husband frequently mistreated and abused her.

Learns of Threats

Sheriff Gilson says he has learned that on several occasions Heldman threatened her with a pistol. It was Heldman's pistol with which she killed Vernard Fearn at the door of his home in the village of Waco, near here, on the night of Dec. 6. She was killed with the same pistol a week later as her husband was taking her to the sheriff's office after she had confessed to him.

In continuing his investigation, Sheriff Gilson expects to learn

KING'S CONDITION CAUSES OPTIMISM

No Increase in Exhaustion Regarded as Especially Good Sign

London, Dec. 15—A more optimistic bulletin on the condition of King George was issued at Buckingham palace this morning.

"The king had several hours sleep. The local condition is so far satisfactory. There is no increase in exhaustion. The pulse remains steady," the bulletin read.

Sir Stanley Hewett, Sir Hugh Rigby and Lord Dawson of Penn, signed the bulletin. It was timed 11:00 a. m.

The latest bulletin served to dispell some of the gloom which pervaded England since the issuance of last night's disturbing bulletin.

The fact that the royal physicians this morning noted no increase in exhaustion was regarded as an especially good sign. It is generally believed that so long as the king continues to maintain his strength, his chances of ultimate recovery will remain good.

Total for Combined City and County Is $58,795, Approximately $10,000 Under Last Week; Biggest Mortgage This Week for $20,000

Although mortgage loans in Marion city and county recorded a drop of approximately $10,000 this week, loans in the city showed an increase of more than $4,000. A decrease of about $16,000 in the amount of money loaned on property outside the city was responsible for the decreases in the total for the week.

WEEK'S CLEARINGS REACH HIGH TOTAL

Local Bank Transactions Again Register Volume Above Average

Although local bank clearings topped $100,000 on three days of the last week and were more than $95,000 on two of the three remaining days, a decrease of more than $18,000 is shown in the total for the week when compared to the total of the preceding week.

Clearings totalled $622,883.04 during the past week while the total for the week preceding was $641,204.42.

The fact that clearings on three days this week were greater than the clearings for Monday is an unusual feature of the week's bank clearings figures. Monday is usually the heaviest day of the week.

Tuesday, with $135,697.97 cleared, was the biggest day during the past week. Friday was the lowest day, only $84,042.07 being cleared.

Clearings for the other days of the last week were: Saturday $104,701.60, Monday $97,353.68, Wednesday $102,211.32, Thursday $96,560.04.

Approximate increase or decrease in the clearings for the various days of the past week when compared to the same day of the preceding week follows: Friday $16,000 increase, Saturday $20,000 decrease, Monday $46,000 decrease, Tuesday $6,000 increase, Wednesday $27,000 increase, Thursday $10,000 increase.

The most notable advance in driving convenience since the self-starter

The Superior Whippet is the first car to offer the new "Finger-Tip Control"—a single button conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, which controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This ingenious device does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button, usually located in a somewhat inaccessible position, and obviates a change from the comfortable driving position to reach the light switch on the dash.

While everyone will welcome this new feature, it will appeal particularly to women drivers. Its simple operation is clearly explained by the illustrations above.

Rolling In Wealth

Will Does Some Figuring and Finds We Are So Busy Counting Our Money We Can't Cut Taxes

By WILL ROGERS

We might auction off a couple of States.

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. There has been so many messages delivered to us in the last week or so that we dont hardly know who, or what to believe. Mr. Coolidge give us a two full Newspaper Lecture on Prosperity, (as practiced by the Republican Party) then Mellon come out the next day and said we was just rolling in wealth, but that he could see no tax cut in sight. We are doing so well, and so busy counting our money that we just haven't got time to stop and cut any taxes.

They sent what they call the Budget to Congress. It took the head men of every department in Washington six months to think up that many figures. You have a budget like you have a limit in a poker game. You are not supposed to go beyond it till at least an hour after the game has been started. We won't run over the budget limit till maby as late as August. Its a good thing. It makes another department in Washington. Then its fun to vote on when its presented.

Finacial Check

But here it is right here in the paper a whole financial statement of how we stand. Now I know a lot of you don't pay much attention to our government finances, because its all too complicated. We read em and we look like we are doing fine, and then there is another bunch of figures on the other side that deny what the ones on this side say. It's like these Publishers with both a morning and evening newspaper. They have one to keep the other out of a law suit. Now if you are feeling pretty down in the mouth and it looks like you aint going to have much Christmas, why its because you havent kept in touch with Mellon. He could have cheered you up anytime. Here is how we are doing so take it to the bank and ask them to give you your share.

Well I went down and I found that what little I was supposed to have had been put in a sinking fund. There is things on there that you had no idea existed. Federal Radio Commission grabbed us in advance for 1929 for $564,027.23. That's just for static alone. In 1930 (you know they book away ahead) why we are supposed to get off for $179,234.28. If they can cut it down every year they will get the thing about right in 10 years.

Commission of Fine Arts, (that don't include Politics) only got us for $8,080.15. But let's get down into some money. Department of Agriculture, $154 million. That's just to tell the Farmers how they can keep on farming even if they don't get relief. If I was a Farmer, I would join our Agricultural Department. That's in 1930. In 29 it was 300,000 less. They don't intend to give him as much advice that year.

To Cost More

Department of commerce, only nicked us for $36 million in 29 and 56 million in 1930. The further Hoover gets out of there the more it is predicted it will cost us. 1930 is going to be a hard year to handle Commerce. That's the cause of the twenty million raise. See we only pay Hoover 75 thousand as salary, and we lose $30 million by his leaving his department. He has to be pretty good to make that 29 up for us in this new job.

Department of Justice costs us $28 million, that aint bad for Justice. In fact Justice is about the cheapest thing we got on our list. Maby that's why we don't get any more of it. I am in favor of paying more and naming some people that ought to have what's coming to em. Department of Labor only runs us a little over 11 million. Jim had got his department running pretty cheap. You see he is supposed to keep track of everybody whether they work or not. If he only had to keep track of the ones that worked, he could do it on a few hundred bucks. He keeping track of all the idle ones that runs into dough. An idle fellow is much harder to watch than one working. Treasury department nicked us for 1929 for $345 million. Mellon is practicing his economy on somebody elses department. Cost us 245 million just to make out these figures to tell us what we was in the hole.

Interest High

That's like hiring a man to tell you you are broke.

The Navy sunk us for $304 Million, including cost of sinking ships according to Washington agreement. The army just shotted us for $405 million in 1929, and $444 million in 1930. Must be looking for a kind of a small war that year. Maby that 44 million is to send the marines further that year. Now, hang onto your seats while you get this item of expense. Interest on the public debt $731 million. And the funny part it never does tell what we own. It keeps juggling with millions and we owe billions, 15 or 18 million I think it is. But none of this tells.

That's where all the money goes that we pay in as Taxes, most of it goes to pay interest on money we owe. Either the federal, or state or town government. Let's sell off enough of this country to somebody and pay off all national debts, then the taxes wouldn't be nearly as much. The Democrats will agree to peddle Texas and Florida. They are kinder on the edges anyhow, and I am certain the Republicans will let Massachusetts and Rhode Island go, if its only for a song, just an old song.

Pro Rata Share

As I say though we owe maby its 25 billion. It's so much they won't put it down, and here is what we got saved up to pay it, we got a balance of Cash on hand in Treasury June 30th 1928 of $200,190,380.85." That's pretty low dough to look a fifteen billion debt in the face with. After studying and figuring on em all day for you I have about come to the conclusion that, that 85 cents on the end there, of our "cash on hand" is just about our pro rata share.

No Room For Christ

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. GEORGE E. GROVES
Pastor, Central Christian Church

Text: "There was no room for them in the inn."—Luke 2:7.

At each succeeding Christmas season we read again with increasing interest the events connected with the coming of our Savior to this earth. We cannot meditate upon the story of the journey of Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem without a feeling of sadness that they should be denied admittance to the inn at the end of their pilgrimage, and be compelled to seek shelter in a humble stable, where the Christ child was born. Just why there was "no room" we are not told. It may have been their poverty, their lowly rank, the physical condition of Mary, or a house so crowded that it was impossible to make room for two more guests. Whether the statement "no room" was a reason or only an excuse of the innkeeper, it does not matter. They were compelled to seek shelter for the night in other quarters.

What happened to Jesus on that first Christmas night has happened again and again. Many others had the "no room" for him during his earthly ministry. Millions today are so engrossed with the things of this earthly life, that they have "no room" for him in their activities and program of life.

Today Christ is crowded out in a number of ways:

1.—By leaving no room for Him. Business, society, pleasure, may so fill our program that we have no place in our busy race of life, for the bigger and better things. Jesus said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom." We should not let our time be so taken up with the secondary things, that we do not have room for the things of primary importance.

2—By not appreciating the true greatness of the commonplace. Had the inn-keeper on that night known the far reaching importance of the events, that were transpiring, he would not have turned from his door, the father and mother of the Christ child. He would have made room for them. No act or event in our lives is insignificant when joined with the divine program through a consecrated life.

3—By selfishness. The keeper of this inn seems to have been actuated not by the motive of "giving" but but "getting." Mary and Joseph were poor. They had just completed a journey of nearly eighty miles. Knowing her physical condition, as must have been true, he had an opportunity to have done an unselfish deed of kindness, to the mother of our Lord. He might have given her his own room, and slept in the stable himself, or obtained comfortable quarters for her in another home. He put his own selfish case before the needs of another, and consequently had no room for the Christ child. Christ gave himself for others. Whoever is actuated by this spirit of unselfishness, makes room in his heart for Christ. This is the true spirit of the Christmas time.

James landed at Curtiss Field, L. I., today after hopping off from Sudbury, Pa., at 5:30 o'clock this morning. He landed at 10:30. A great reception was accorded him by Long Island officials. He left shortly after landing to be received at New York city hall by Mayor Walker.

HELDMAN ARRESTED, STORY IS CHECKED

Canton Coroner Finds Certain Discrepancies in Tale of Young Husband

whether Heldman's alleged threats influenced Mrs. Heldman's alleged murder of Fearn or were a factor in her supposed suicide.

A "suicide letter" which Mrs. Heldman is believed to have written several days before her death and then decided to destroy, is apparently authentic, Sheriff Gibson said, despite the fact that Joseph Horner, the brother, contends that it is not his sister's handwriting.

Admits Berating Wife

The letter states that Fearn at one time attacked Mrs. Heldman and threatened to expose her to her husband unless she continued to submit to him.

After police had been searching for the "phantom murderess" who killed Fearn, for a week, Heldman found the letter, he says, confronted the wife with it, and she confessed. Heldman admits that he berated her as they made the trip to Canton from Lorain in his automobile.

Mrs. Fearn revealed today that she had known Mrs. Heldman when the latter was Margaret Horner, working in a Canton office. The girl frequently was present at dancing parties which she and her husband attended, she related.

Although she saw the "gun girl" on the front porch of her home, the night Fearn was killed, she did not recognize her as the former Margaret Horner, Mrs. Fearn said. The young woman had grown much thinner, she stated.

Convinced of Suicide

Sheriff Gibson is convinced that Mrs. Heldman committed suicide. The bullet which was fired into her body came from a pistol held beneath the coat, he points out.

Authorities are also investigating a report that Fearn and Mrs. Heldman met at the Bond hotel in Akron Tuesday night before the murder. Mrs. Fearn can not account for her husband's whereabouts that night, according to reporters. Mrs. Heldman is known to have been at the hotel Wednesday night, the night before the murder.

Mrs. Heldman's body was to be returned today to Dubois, Pa., her birthplace and the home of her mother.

HUSBAND SHOOTS WOMAN, MAN IN PARKED MACHINE

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 15—Campbell Marshall, 50, Frankfort farmer, shot his wife six times and wounded Deputy Sheriff Orn Dennis, when he was said to have found the latter sitting with his wife in a parked automobile near here today. Both are in a serious condition.

Marshall said he was compelled to sit home with his four children while his wife attended a dance. Becoming suspicious, he started to search for her and found her in the automobile.

shade of pale green, with walnut trim, and like coloring is used for the reader's platform at the front of the church.

An attractive setting for the reader's platform is provided by a large arch in the front wall of the church, in which is hung a buff-colored silk drapery which conceals the organ pipes.

A new Kimball organ is in a pit at the left of the platform. A corresponding pit was placed on the right side.

Light Fixtures Beautiful

A particularly beautiful feature of the new church are the fixtures, which were designed by Wilmer S. Snow, of Chicago, to correspond with the peculiar style of architecture. The main fixtures are of solid bronze. The carpets are in a rich and deeper shade of green.

That silence may be preserved in the main auditorium, where services will be held, three sets of doors have been placed between the street and the hall. The first leads into a narrow hall and the second into a large hall, in arch-way effect, which adjoins the auditorium.

The new church has been arranged with every accommodation for its members, including small first and second readers' rooms, organist and soloists' rooms, lavatories, rooms for distribution of literature and cloak rooms upon both the main floor and in the basement. There are four entrances, at the front and upon the south side, with two at the rear of the church on Baker st.

Colors Blend Artistically

With the exception of the main auditorium and adjoining rooms the church throughout is decorated in a deep shade of buff, which blends beautifully with the green of the service hall.

The church is the largest building in the city using the steam heat, thermostatically controlled, with gas as a fuel. The furnace rooms adjoin the literature and Sunday school rooms in the basement.

Designed by Charles D. Falkner, of Chicago, the exterior of the church is of Indiana buff sandstone. The building is 64 by 72 feet in length and is situated on a triangular lot with a 282-foot frontage on Mt. Vernon av., 242 on East Church st., and 144½ on Baker st., at the rear.

One last detail of the church, which could not be completed for Sunday's opening, will be the installation, next week, of mottos on the north and south walls of the church. They will be in raised bronze lettering and will be quotations from Christ and from Mary Baker Eddy.

The motto will read, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."—Jesus, and "Divine love always has met and always will meet every human need."—Mary Baker Eddy.

History of Organization

The Marion Scientist church traces its beginning to the fall of 1895, when on Oct. 6, seven members of the faith met at the home of Henry Hazen, East Church and Sargent sts., for a Christian Science service. Services were held there regularly and definite plans for a Christian Science organization made by Nov. 15.

Subsequently, rooms were obtained in the Fisher block, now occupied by the Citizens, Building & Loan Co., West Center and South Prospect sts., and the first service was held there April 5, 1896, with 22 persons in attendance.

On Aug. 10 the organization was incorporated under the Ohio laws as First Church of Christ, Scientist, Marion, at which time it became recognized as an authorized branch of the Mother Church, Boston, Mass. The rooms in the Fisher block served as the church home for two years, when it became necessary to obtain larger quarters. Accordingly, in April, 1898, the society moved to the second floor of the Farmers' and Mechanics bank building, now the Marion National bank, where services were held for seven years, until removal to the present site.

Three lots at the intersection of East Church st. and Mt. Vernon av. were purchased in May, 1899, and in Dec. 1904, the adjoining house and lot were purchased. This building was remodeled and first services held there in February, 1905. This house was remodeled twice to accomodate the growing church and the reading room was finally moved to its present location in the Marion building, 106 South Main st.

EXPECT WEATHER TO HALT SPREAD

Ohio's mild form influenza epidemic will lose its hold if the weather reports for the weekend are correct, it was intimated today by health commissioners throughout the state. The weather forecast states dry cold temperatures are due to arrive tonight and continue through Monday. On the other hand, however, if the damp foggy conditions continue it is believed a great number of new cases will be reported.

Dr. C. P. Robbins, chief of the communicable disease division of the state department of health at Columbus told International News Service that he conservatively estimated that there are 50,000 cases in the state.

DR. AND MRS. SWANK IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Former Local Pastor and Wife Escape Serious Injuries

Dr. and Mrs. Jesse Swank, of Dayton, formerly of this city, suffered minor injuries in an automobile accident Wednesday night four miles south of Wilmington, when the machine which Dr. Swank was driving collided with another, in which two men from Cincinnati were riding. The accident was caused by blinding headlights of the Cincinnati machine. The Swank machine was wrecked.

Dr. and Mrs. Swank were taken to the home of the Rev. W. T. Patterson, at Wilmington, overnight and removed to their home, 408 Richmond av., Dayton, Thursday morning. It was thought at first that Mrs. Swank had received a fractured skull and that Dr. Swank's ankle was seriously injured. X-ray examination showed however, that only minor injuries and bruises were sustained.

The Cincinnati men received cuts but were able to proceed to their homes.

Dr. Swank, former pastor of Epworth M. E. church is now district Methodist superintendent with headquarters in Dayton.

AWARDS MADE IN THEATER CONTEST

Miss Viola Davidson Wins First in Charles Ray Letter Competition

Miss Viola Davidson, 484 South Prospect st., will be awarded a two months' pass to the Palace theater and a large autographed picture of Charles Ray, tonight at the 8 o'clock showing of Ray's latest picture, "Garden of Eden," according to the manager, Albert Sindlinger, this morning, after judging of 150 letters in the Charles Ray contest had been completed.

The large number of letters received following announcement of the contest, made it impossible for judging to be completed sooner, and instead of the six awards, as announced, 10 will be made. Notable in all of them was the expression of appreciation of the writers for the clean-cut pictures Ray has always presented.

Second award, a large autographed picture and a pass for one month at the theater will be given Miss Virginia Ray, 575 Cherry st.; third award, picture and two weeks pass, to Earle Donaldson, 530 East Center st.; fourth award, picture and one week's pass, to 12-year-old Miss Betty Fetter, 215 Hane av.; fifth and sixth awards, passes to one show, to Mrs. A. C. Perratt, 374 West Church st. and Mrs. Louis O'Day, 204 Silver st.

Awards for seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth letters and smaller autographed pictures will be given Gerald Wilson, sophomore at Harding High school, 910 Maynard dr., Mrs. G. N. Alworth, 186 Kingston pl., Miss Florence E. Tuttle, 470 Fosler Lane and Dennis Gompf, 213 Waples av.

The awards will be presented the winners by Charles Ray in person on the stage, with the assistance of Mr. Sindlinger. The 10 best letters will be sent to Ray's manager in New York City.

Charity Party at Theaters Yields Generous Supply of Gifts for City's Poor

1,500 Children Pile Up Donations of Vegetables, Fruits and Other Provisions for Admission to Entertainment Sponsored by Delphian Club

More than 1,500 Marion youngsters responded to invitation of the Delphian club to attend a theater party "in the interests of the poor" this morning at the Grand, Marion and Oakland theaters, through the courtesy of the respective managers.

The youngsters were given an hour and a half's entertainment upon presentation at the door of canned or fresh fruit or vegetables. The food and other articles received from the kiddies was divided equally between the Salvation and Red Cross for distribution among the city's needy.

The party is conducted annually by members of the Delphian club as a part of their program of charities of the year.

Miss Dorothy Briggs served as organist at the Marion and Mrs. J. P. Ferguson at the Oakland. The mechanical organ was used at the Grand. Persons entering appropriate to the occasion were admitted at half the usual admission fee.

FAVORS PARALLEL PARKING FOR CITY

S. F. Blake, Auto Club Official, Gives Figures To Support Arguments

enlighten the motorist who now braves the rush hour traffic and who searches in rain for a parking place during the day or early evening.

S. F. Blake, West Center st. florist, and for 10 years a member of the traffic commission of the Marion automobile club, has some very pertinent views on the question. Mr. Blake has not only studied the parking problem from what appears to be a logical viewpoint but has brought mathematics and measuring stick to his aid.

First of all Mr. Blake maintains that streets are intended for travel. Any parking system to be satisfactory, he believes, should be one that would expedite the passage of automobiles and other vehicles over the city's streets.

Favors Parallel Plan

Before going any farther it should be stated that Mr. Blake favors parallel parking. He also favors a uniform system; not diagonal parking on certain streets and parallel parking on others.

Going back to his first contention that the streets are meant for travel, Mr. Blake will tell you that a car parked diagonally extends into the street about twice as far as one parked parallel. The result is that the driving space is reduced by about the width of two automobiles when cars are parked on both sides of the street.

With cars parked parallel to the curb practically all the main streets of the city, and especially the downtown section, are wide enough for two lines of traffic in either direction, Mr. Blake points out. This would practically double the number of cars which can be put through the downtown section in any given length of time. With diagonal parking, the system now in use on Main and Center sts. as well as others, two double lines of traffic are impossible.

Answers Space Argument

In discussing the parking situation with Mr. Blake it was suggested that more cars could be parked in the business district if they were to be parked at an angle to the curb. Mr. Blake is ready to admit this point but points out that by actual measurment diagonal parking will accommodate only eight more cars to the block; four on each side of the street. He believes that 175 is a very liberal estimate of the number of additional machines that could be accommodated on Main and Center sts. with diagonal parking rather than parallel parking.

In view of the fact that there are more than 10,000 automobiles in Marion county, the majority of which are driven over Marion streets more or less regularly, it is a slight accommodation to admit 175 more cars to a parking space and at the same time make driving more difficult for the remainder, Mr. Blake believes.

Another Objection Cited

Another objection Mr. Blake raises against diagonal parking is that a driver in leaving his parking place is unable to see cars approaching from behind until the rear of his car is back in the line of traffic. This is especially true if there is a solid panel delivery truck parked immediately to the driver's right.

Diagonal parking again interferes with traffic when a delivery truck stops in the street to unload goods, Mr. Blake points out. When a driver's way is blocked by a truck double parked behind a row of diagonally parked cars he is forced to turn almost into the line of traffic from the opposite direction to get around the truck. In cases such as this parallel parking would increase the space in the street by the width of one machine.

With the coming of the city buses, diagonal parking has further acted to hinder traffic, according to Mr. Blake. Cars parked at an angle make it difficult for drivers to get close to the curb to discharge or take on passengers. The result is that only in a few cases are bus drivers able to withdraw from the line of traffic when they stop. Cars parked parallel, due to the fact that they take up only half the room that cars parked at an angle occupy, would enable bus drivers to get nearer to the curb, thus giving additional room for passing traffic.

Views of other persons, including a number of city officials interested in the parking problem, will follow this explanation of the situation as Mr. Blake sees it.

FOG COVERS CITY

Dense Atmosphere Handicaps Automobile Traffic

Automobile traffic here last night and early today was somewhat slowed up because of a heavy fog, which descended over Marion and vicinity last night and early today. The fog was accompanied by a mist, which followed a heavy rainfall Thursday night and yesterday morning. About 1.25 inches of rain fell.

Partly cloudy weather is predicted for tonight and Sunday.

Temperatures yesterday remained unusualy high with a 50-degree high and 42-degree low. A year ago the temperatures recorded were 50-degree high and 37-degree low.

OHIO ELECTORAL COLLEGE WILL CAST VOTES LATER

Columbus, Dec. 15—Disregarding an Ohio statute which provides that Ohio members of the electoral college announce their presence to the governor here before noon on New Year's day, announcement was made today at the offices of Gov. Vic Donahey that the Buckeye state members will be requested to be at the governor's office not later than 9 a. m. on Wednesday, Jan. 7, for the purpose of casting their ballots for President-elect Herbert Hoover and Vice President-elect Charles Curtis.

HOTEL INSTALLING NEW MODEL SIGN

55 Feet of Letters Advertising Harding; Use Neon Gas Equipment

Work of installing a new sign on the northwest corner of the Hotel Harding was started today. The new sign will be 55 feet long and approximately 10 feet wide at the widest point. It will be erected at an angle of 35 degrees to the building.

"Hotel Harding" will be the legend on the sign. The letters will be in red and the border in green. The sign is of a new type using tubes filled with neon gas for illumination. An electric current is passed through the gas, which results in a strong glow reported to be many times more visible through fog or rain than the standard electric light bulb sign.

The sign is the largest of its type in the state, according to a representative of the sign company in charge of the installation. The next largest neon sign is located at the offices of a Columbus newspaper.

The sign will be installed in four sections. Installation of the first two sections, which form the word "Harding" was being made today. This part of the work was expected to be completed today.

Two more sections of the sign forming the word "Hotel" will be installed on Monday and Tuesday of next week. The new sign will be first illuminated on Tuesday night, according to plans.

An unusual feature of the installation of these signs is that work must be done from the bottom upward instead of from the top downward as is customary with the usual electric light bulb sign.

A much smaller sign installed when the hotel was completed will be replaced by the new one.

MOVIELAND MOURNS AGED ACTOR'S DEATH

With his familiar cigar at right angles in his mouth, he usually enacted the screen role of the stern parent.

He became one of the world's foremost film character actors. He was closely associated with Cecil and William De Mille in their early theatrical work and followed them into their motion picture activities.

Roberts began his stage career shortly after completing his schooling in San Francisco. His early work on the stage was what he often called "barn storming." He played one night stands and was fond of telling in his latter and more opulent days of the hardships and romance of the early actor as he knew him.

Theatergoers of an earlier generation will recall Roberts for his characterization as Jim, in the noted melodrama, "Jim the Penman."

Roberts himself had written and produced several dramas before he became known as "the grand old man of the movies."

In Roberts' more successful days he was associated on the stage with the noted British actor, Forbes Robertson; later with William H. Crane, one of his close friends, who died several years ago in Hollywood. Also he played in companies with Fanny Davenport, and gained considerable fame as Svengali in "Trilby." Among other leading roles was that of Simon Legree in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Ohio's Showing in Bank Deposits.

A few days ago we spoke in these columns of the splendid increase of $2,100,574,000 made in savings deposits by the people of the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30 raising the aggregate of such deposits to $28,132,575,000, or $214.23 per capita, a per capita increase of $13.68 during the year.

Figures since given out in Washington show that all individual deposits, including savings deposits, in reporting banks in the United States and its possessions, amounted on June 30 to $53,244,698,000, or $405.46 per capita. The Washington report of this week also presented figures showing that the resources of the national banks had increased about $1,700,000,000 during the fiscal year of 1928, making the resources of the 26,213 banks reporting, including most of the important banks not chartered as national banks, $71,574,328,000.

While all of us are naturally pleased at these showings, reflecting as they do the general prosperity of the country, the savings deposits figures for the various states of the union are hardly so gratifying to us of Ohio as they might be.

Naturally we of Ohio would assume that we were well up toward the top in the matter of savings deposits. As a matter of fact we are far from it. Our per capita savings deposits are but $230.98 against the country-wide average of $214.23. All the New England states lead us by per capita savings deposits running from the $397.71 of Maine to the $628.21 of Massachusetts. All the eastern states lead us from Delaware with $244.48 to New York with per capita savings deposits of $610.48. Michigan leads us with $236.42 and so do California with $415.11 and little Nevada with $270.29. In fact, we are fifteenth in the list of states in the matter of per capita savings deposits, and our per capita of $461.85 in individual deposits puts us seventeenth in that class, in which New York leads with $1,190.27 and Massachusetts comes a close second with $1,026.26.

Considering Ohio's rank in manufacturing and agriculture, her savings deposits are not what they should be, the explanation of our showing possibly being that the profits from too many of our industries and too many of our public utilities go to the East, where they are largely owned and controlled.

Some Foundation for Story.

One of the leading news associations, a day or two ago, carried a very interesting summary of a copyrighted story in the New York Sun by Robert H. Davis in which that writer reveals a number of previously unexploited incidents in the life of the late Warren G. Harding.

According to the tale of Mr. Rogers, young Harding, who played a slide trombone, was fired from an eight-piece orchestra which furnished music for a skating rink opened in the early eighties by a young Italian, Pete Venuti, because he asked a quarter advance beyond his nightly pay of half a dollar.

Recounting the marriage of Venuti to a girl in the Klondike and the birth of three sons to them, one of whom was listed, following the World war, as missing and unaccounted for, the story relates how Venuti and his two remaining sons received invitations to the interment of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington as the guests of the White House, and recites how, the day following the ceremonies, as the two sat smoking in the White House, President Harding brought up the matter of his discharge from the Venuti rink.

"Pete," said the president, "why didn't you see that twenty-five cent raise."

"Because," Venuti answered after a thoughtful pull at his cigar, "I didn't think you were worth the raise them, Warren, and I still don't think so."

Before they parted for the night Venuti asked why President Harding had invited him and his sons to the burial of the Unknown Soldier.

"Well, Pete," said the president, with a hand on the other's shoulder, "I knew that you had lost a boy out there—and it might be—who knows?—that the hero in Arlington ——. Good night, Pete."

That conversation, Mr. Davis concludes, took place seven years ago. President Harding now sleeps in Marion, Pete Venuti in Dayton and the Unknown Soldier in his tomb at the nation's capital.

As a bit of fiction, the story is very cleverly done. The artistry of the White House scene is decidedly effective, and the closing utterance of the president just such as might have been made by him. The writer's concluding paragraph is admittedly strong, but as a recital of facts, the story leaves much to be desired.

However, let us be fair. The youthful Harding did play an alto horn, back in the early eighties, in the town band, some of the members of which, including the future president, furnished music for a local skating rink. Ten years later, a young Italian, Pete Benvenuti, was interested in a skating rink here. He, like everybody else in Marion, knew Harding. He married here, and one of his sons was reported missing after the war. And it is an uncontroverted fact that the late president sleeps in Marion, Benvenuti in Dayton and the Unknown Soldier across the Potomac from Washington in beautiful Arlington.

The Chicago hotfoss and society girl compelled to pay $6,849 customs fines on raiment she forgot to declare upon her return from Paris might profitably spend a portion of her fortune looking to the cultivation of her memory.

If the disloyalists down in Mexico are anything like those we have up here, we will probably hear next that the seventy bandits who raided the town of Jicotepec down there and carried off twenty-two of the towns prettiest girls are not bandits in fact but "revolutionists stirred to stern measure by the promptings of loftiest patriotism."

The Italian premier has directed Italians to patronize Italian ships whenever they are available, and they are doing it, to the great concern of the shipping interests of all other nationals. Were Americans to follow their rule, it would be a question of but a few years till the United States would possess a merchant marine in a class by itself.

According to a London cable, the "Prince of Wales has indicated that if he ever succeeds to the throne, he prefers to take the title of King David I," his name being Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David of Windsor. At some time in the past, the prince may have so intimated, but it's about a million-to-one shot that he hasn't done so since the beginning of the illness of his royal father.

Put Money in Your Hose.

Some very sensible suggestions to women shoppers in the closing days of the Christmas rush are made by Detective Captain Frank R. Boyd, of Pittsburgh, who holds that, despite the decidedly abbreviated skirts of today, no purse is as safe from the activities of pickpockets as the old "First National."

Among the "don'ts" suggested for observance by women Christmas shoppers are:

"Don't display large amounts of money."

"Don't lay your purse on the counter."

"Don't carry purses dangling from the arm."

And his closing suggestion is that women carry only small amounts of money in their purses, replenishing the supply as needed from the stocking "roll."

Although the captain's don'ts and his final suggestion are intended for the guidance of the women shoppers of Pittsburgh, all of them will apply equally well to the women shoppers of Marion, or any other city. Possibly in the smaller cities, the risk run is not so great as in cities of the size of Pittsburgh or population centers of still greater size, but there is danger of loss just the same. No city, however small, is wholly free from those who take advantage of the Christmas holiday throngs to prey on the public. Experience has demonstrated that this is true in Marion, and it is true elsewhere. To be on the safe side, every precaution should be exercised at this season of the year to frustrate the efforts of the criminal element.

Minerals Essential to Teeth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Not long ago I found myself at the same dinner table with a mother and two daughters. The young women had dazzlingly white teeth. I think I never saw more perfect teeth.

I could not help glancing at the mother's teeth. She had them all. They were the same shape as her daughters, but gave evidence of much dental work.

The mother belonged to a generation that learned late in life how important a member of society the dentist is. Of course, too, dentistry was very crude in her childhood.

Thank goodness we have learned that the teeth can be preserved. By proper care they will last us throughout life.

In the public schools of the larger communities there are school doctors and school nurses. They are watching the children. Among other good things they insist upon they demand that the youngsters shall care for the teeth. The "tooth-brush drills" are common. The teachers take pride in the physical welfare of the pupils and count this of great importance.

What the teeth are to be depends on the care given the baby from the day of its birth. The quality of the milk, and its abundance, will determine the quantity of lime and phosphorus without which there can be no dependable bones and teeth.

"Lime starvation" is responsible for many of the dental defects from which we suffer. Without lime there can not be good teeth. The evil of excessive candy eating is not the direct effect of the sugar upon the body. It comes from the fact that the candy eating satisfies the appetite and keeps the child from taking milk and other minera carrying foods.

It is not the young child alone who gets bad effects from lime starvation. Big boys and girls, young men and women, old men and women—all must have ceaseless supplies of minerals or else trouble is on the way. Not only bad teeth, but also other serious ailments, can be traced to the neglect of proper foods.

No one should neglect regular trips to the dentist. The earlier they start and the more frequent they are the less pain or discomfort will be the result. It is easy and painless to prevent dental defects. The way to have beautiful teeth is to keep them in their original state.

Unfortunately, it is very rare indeed for a person in middle life to have teeth without fillings, or their need. Without discussing the reasons why, we must face the fact that teeth will decay. If attention is given immediately, a tiny filling will be enough. If you neglect a cavity for months and months, it increases in size. The tooth is doomed unless the dentist is consulted.

Nobody can be well if the teeth and gums are diseased. The poisons will undermine the health.

In addition, if the teeth are decayed and sore, there will be neglect of proper chewing of the food. This will result in undernourishment and impaired health.

Make your dentist your friend. Consult him regularly—several times a year.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

M.S. Q—What causes "tremors" or "chills" in and around the brain?

2—What is the cause of "nightmares?"

3—Is an enlarged gland caused by lack of iodine in the system?

4—What will benefit high blood pressure?

A—This condition is most likely due to poor circulation caused by a run-down state of health. Build up the entire system by proper exercise and dieting.

2—Very often this is due to indigestion or intestinal disturbances. Proper diet and correct exercise should alleviate this trouble.

3—It is believed now by many authorities that enlarged thyroid may be due to lack of iodine.

4—Proper diet and general care. For further information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

T.F. Q—What can I do to reduce?

A—Weight reduction is merely a matter of self-control as regards the diet. Exercise is, of course, essential. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

E.V.F. Q—What causes small pains like needles in the stomach, but especially in the lower part of the body?

A—This condition may be due to nervousness. Try to build up your general health. Eat nourishing foods and indulge in plenty of outdoor exercise. Avoid indigestion and constipation. Editorial Opinion.

INFLUENZA PRECAUTION.

The influenza epidemic which is developing at various places this winter, though not as serious as in the war years, is nevertheless serious enough to demand public attention. Thousands of cases have developed in the past week or two. With the colder weather which the next few weeks will bring, a further spread of the disease may be expected unless precautions are taken against it.

Dr. Harry L. Rockwood, Cleveland health commissioner, several times in the past week has invited the public's cooperation in preventing a spread of the epidemic. Public health officials throughout the nation have done the same. They are alert to the danger of the situation, but without adequate cooperation their efforts may avail little.

Dr. Rockwood advises first of all that persons who are ill should remain in bed and isolated. Every one, he suggests, should be particularly careful in choice of foods. Fresh air and exercise, everything making for a healthful bodily condition, are desirable at such a time as this.

There is, of course, no occasion for great uneasiness. The infection this year is milder in form than in the serious epidemics of eight and ten years ago. At the same time it can not safely be disregarded. Prudent people will take the advice of the medical profession to heart and make every reasonable effort to protect themselves as well as their neighbors against influenza.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE HUMAN MR. COOLIDGE.

Nearing the time when he must leave the White House, and with the feel of the burden of his office lifting, President Coolidge is revealing a warmth that is bringing him into closer fellowship with the people he has so faithfully served. He has become, it may be said with no disrespectful thoughts in mind, the human Mr. Coolidge.

In his discussion of the subject of providing a summer home for the men who are to follow him he takes the public into his confidence as never before. Nobody could have imagined, six months ago, this man telling how he kept fit during his years in the White House. It is not a cold man, one without a sense of humor, who says:

"I have often remarked that at least I had one distinction. I have been the healthiest president that the country ever has had. My ability to keep well has not been due to a particularly robust constitution or any extraordinary efforts in physical exercise. My habits have been regular. It is seldom that I have been late at meal time and I have avoided keeping late hours."

It looks very much as if, in the course of a few months—after March 4—this country will have another good-humored, smiling ex-president to join Chief Justice William H. Taft.—Toledo Blade.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 15—Adroit ladies with a penchant for tapping the paying lodes in the gold fields of Broadway are about the best-dressed in the town. Dowdiness is as much of a complete blight to the artful industry as a swell address is a boon.

The engaging maidens who take the buerre et oeuf gentry for the proverbial "cleaning" may have only a simpering smile and the intellectual equipment of a feeble-minded gnat, but their wardrobes reflect the seasonal vagaries of the Rue de la Paix. They are clothed in the best.

The most celebrated Lorelei came to New York with only a shiny blue serge and a tam and was soon lost in the shuffle dealing 'em off the arm in a Tenth avenue lunchroom. Then she saw the "Great Light" and tapped a sympathetic old lolo for a dressy outfit and quit the beanery.

This was her start and in six years she has worked her way up to duplex apartments, diamond bracelets and dinguses like that. To a struggling girl friend she once confided the secret of her triumph as: "Eighty per cent. clothes and twenty per cent. tears."

Clothes may not make the lady, but they do make the gals attractive to those lonely philanderers so "misunderstood at home." And that is important to those who spin their seductive webs. Character and family traditions have no part in Broadway's love-making. It is a racket.

A line from a play of Broadway manners this season ran: "You can be dumb, dearie, but you gotta have a front." There is a true story of a mouse-like and plainly-dressed stenographer who received a windfall in the shape of a $10,000 legacy. She decided to gamble.

She spent $7,000 for a collection of clothes, bobbed her hair and moved into a sumptuous suite in one of the fashionable hotels, gracing the smart dining-room nightly. In six weeks she became the bride of an aging high roller. And while he has escaped the ether cone he has a hacking cough.

Supplementing these observations on clothes value, there is an expert in town who specializes in teaching sartorial smartness, appealing chiefly to young girls who have come to New York to make their way. In one of her circulars she says: "Any one can be important in New York with proper clothes." It may be she takes in too much territory, but it is certainly true of the flashy world of Broadway.

The old-time actor of the funny papers is not entirely extinct on the Rialto. Now and then he drops into the agencies from no one knows where to bestow his courtly bow and receives the customary "Nothing today, sir." His voice, vibrant and low, retains its old time grandeur—a voice, incidentally, that is crying almost alone in the wilderness. His venerable silk hat sags a little and the moths have done their worst to his fur collared coat, but he preserves the shabby dignity that is traditional. His spats are frayed and slightly curled around the edges and he carries his one glove in the hand that holds his cane. He has stalked tragedy during his best years. Now it stalks him.

Despite these few remaining types of another day, actors offer little today to distinguish them from the ordinary run of folk. They might be bond brokers, merchants or even columnists. In fact, I'll go further—Voice: Make it timbuctoo—and bet a cookie a stranger can not spot an actor the length of Broadway. They once had a Certain Something that made them stand apart. It might have been a commanding shock of long hair, a Grecian profile, bushy brows over sorrowful eyes or an inch-wide black silk eyeglass ribbon.

It was Tuesday.

The Pullman company paid out $32,000,000 in dividends.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. Klerx, of Mary street.

Grant E. Mouser, who had been taken very ill on a Pennsylvania train near Wooster, was brought home somewhat better, but still very weak.

The board of directors of the Marion Ice and Cold Storage company was increased from five to seven, the board being H. Strelitz, F. S. Keller, H. W. Keller, R. H. Reidenbaugh, J. F. Dombaugh, C. R. McMurray and C. H. Elliott.

The Fight for Individuality.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

After all, for each of us it is our own personality that counts. To say this is not to preach selfishness, for all altruism and all systems of cooperation and social unity are necessarily based on the individual.

But our present mechanical civilization and our "mass production" tend to debase the individual. Dr. Homer P. Swift has said something interesting on this subject, as follows: "The worship of organization in this country has many dangers. To do big things, to encourage economic mass production, we form big machines which work more or less automatically. A man, at certain places in the machine, performs certain motions which the machine can not be made to perform. But in doing this he becomes the slave of the machine; his actions depend upon those of the machine and hence become merely mechanical. In organizing hospitals, group clinics and educational institutions there is a comparable danger. Each individual has a set task and a rate of motion imposed upon him by demands of the rest of the organization. This consumes so much of his energy that little is left to apply to independent thought. . . . Because applied science has made possible these wonderful and fearful machines, with their consequent demands, many persons are asking today whether science has not failed in its object to better man's condition. They recognize that materially he may be more comfortable and physically more healthful, but ask whether mentally he is superior to his predecessors and whether he has retained his freedom."

Dr. Swift is speaking as a scientist, a member of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, and in his exhibition of medicine as being an art as well as a science he, as many other representatives of his profession, have recently done, is pleading for the development of individual thinking in the practice of the physician. The business of the scientist is analysis; that of the artist is synthesis.

"Not all of the art of medicine is at the bedside, nor all the science of medicine in the laboratory."

In other words, the instinct of the artist, which is an individual gift, must cooperate with that of the scientist in order that medicine, or any other form of knowledge, shall advance in acquirement and in technique. The great discoverers in science have been artists in their methods. Skill in experimentation—the cornerstone of scientific method—is an expression of artistic power. Skill can only be developed by individual practice. What, then, if the individual be swallowed up in the mental darkness of mass production methods?

On the educational side the fight for individuality calls for the avoidance of these methods in dealing with the evolution of the mental gifts of the young. This is very far from saying that pupils in the schools should be left at liberty to choose their own studies. Quite the contrary. But on the other hand, they should not all be measured by the same standard, regardless of their individual capacities, nor all be urged into technical studies, for which but a few are fitted by nature. The immense variety of human gifts and abilities is no less evident than the essential unity of the whole race. This world would be a desperately tedious place if it were not so. Even among angels—beings which all religions and philosophies picture as enjoying the ideal state of bliss—ranks and hierarchies and differences of powers and distinctions universally prevail. Their personalities are always carefully distinguished. Should not, then, this precious quality of individuality, ascribed by common consent to the highest idealizations of existence, be cherished and preserved on this earth, to give it a little of the charm of diversity and dissimilarity? Let us be careful that in aspiring to ascend the Mountains of the Moon we do not end by burying our race in the sands of Sahara.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Carl Sandburg, writing in the Chicago News, tells of the Lincoln-Douglas debates. One of those great events was recently re-enacted at Knox college at Galesburg, Illinois. Says Sandburg, biographer of Lincoln: "Three great actors or human forces took part in the Lincoln-Douglas debates. The orators, Lincoln and Douglas, were two of the actors in the drama. The third was the people. They came in the cold and almost frozen rain of a raw October day to stand and listen three hours to the speakers of the day. That crowd of 20,000 people was an instrument, a factor in history, that the minds and tongues of the orators tried to control and direct. In seven years both of the great orators were dead. But the people go on and on. Perhaps a thousand years from now there will be a millennial celebration of the event of seventy years ago on this spot. The very words of all great orators testify and cry that while the tongues of orators turn to dust the people go on and on."

In the above paragraph Carl Sandburg says the people go on although the tongues of orators turn to dust. The people do go on and the manner of their going is determined in part by the spoken and the written word. People seem so bent on their pleasures, so intent upon having their own way that we sometimes think they are uninfluenced. But they are deeply influenced, more than we know. We are influenced beyond what we ever admit. We listen and sometimes heed little, but the impression is left.

There is much talk about the speed with which one can go from coast to coast across the American continent. Schedules between New York and Chicago come in for much discussion. More interseting, however, is the change in schedules which can be brought about in Central American countries. In Mexico, Central America and the Panama country it sometimes takes weeks to go a few hundred miles. Journeys which take two weeks may soon be cut to twenty hours. There are other countries where the airplane means more than in the United States.

The Chicago World's fair of 1893 was probably the outstanding event for education, industry and entertainment since the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. There have been other world's fairs, but somehow the big Chicago show seems to stand out as foremost in the last thirty-five years. Now Chicago is planning another exposition on grand lines. But the city has some inside preparation to make before she can invite the world. It is known for its racketeering and organized crime. Perhaps it is no worse in proportion than many other cities. Unfortunately many people think so. What Chicago needs is two campaigns; one to rid the city of racketeers and another to tell the world it is done.

Then come on with the exposition.

Dinner Stories.

Judge—"One year and fifty dollars fine."

Prisoner's lawyer—"I shall make a motion to have that sentence reversed."

Judge—"Motion granted. Fifty years and one dollar fine."

"Don't you think women's clothes are showing more individuality than formerly?"

"Well, more of the individual, anyway."

BOLIVIA HOLDS OUT ON MEDIATION PLAN

South American Country May Not Wave Demand for Apology

Washington, Dec. 15—The question of whether there will be war between Bolivia and Paraguay appeared today to depend on Bolivia.

The efforts of the special mediation committee of the Washington conference on conciliation and arbitration to effect an amicable settlement of the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay were at a standstill.

The mediators were awaiting some sign from Bolivia which might indicate she would accept the offer of good offices made yesterday at a plenary session of the conference. Now that the mediators have made their gesture, there is nothing more they can do until and unless Bolivia is willing to recede from the position on moral preparation.

Meanwhile there is considerable activity behind the scenes in attempts to bring the two countries together without apologies on either side for the "incident" at Fort Vanguardia, in the disputed territory of Chaco Boreal, resulted in the killing of 20 Bolivian soldiers and the wounding of many more.

Thus far there has been nothing to indicate that Bolivia would waive her demand for an apology.

SAYS NAVY BUILDING FIGHT FOR CONTROL

McNutt Charges U. S. Not on Even Basis with Great Britain

New York, Dec. 15—"Whether Great Britain or the United States is to be the master of this nation's destiny" is the question at issue in strengthening the American navy, Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American legion, declared today at a luncheon of the foreign policy association.

McNutt asserted that instead of the United States maintaining a parity in naval armament with Great Britain, as provided for at the Washington conference agreement in 1922, this nation "has been maneuvered into falling below Great Britain, and is now only equal to Japan."

"The relative naval strength now stands, Great Britain five, United States three, and Japan three," said McNutt.

McNutt declared the issue was "a question of the freedom of the seas."

"It is a question of whether Great Britain will continue to dictate in time of war where we shall trade and how we shall trade," he asserted.

Mr. Hoover's speech stressed the fact that the world was on the brink of a "new era" of industry and democracy in which the Argentine would take an eminent place among the leaders of the western world.

FLU LIGHT

Good Attendance in Upper Sandusky Schools Reported

Upper Sandusky, Dec. 15 — Although one local physician suggested closing the schools on account of the number of pupils absent on account of illness in the one building, the total per cent absent in the other buildings does not warrant this, according to school officials.

In the senior high school building with 240 pupils only five were reported absent and at the South building only one out of 100. The East building showed the largest per cent., 30 to 35 per cent being absent. Part of this was due to the rainy weather and other causes.

The flu epidemic which is gaining such a foothold in surrounding cities does not seem to have struck here as yet with a very slight number of cases reported over town.

BUCYRUS ORDERED TO BUILD PLANT

State Places Order Demanding That City Furnish Disposal System

ELECTORS COMPLAIN

May Delay Project Until School Debt Is Liquidated

Bucyrus, Dec. 15—An order was placed against the city of Bucyrus Friday, by John E. Monger, state director of health, demanding that the city build a sewage disposal plant, an allowing just one year for the accomplishment of this. The order was given in a meeting held yesterday in the office of the director of health in the Pure Oil building, 240 North High st. at which Attorney Charles F. Schaber, who was hired at the last council meeting to assist City Solicitor J. W. Miller in his efforts to show cause why Bucyrus should not be forced to install a disposal plant, Miller, city chemist, J. R. Lower, county health commissioner, Mayor Schuler, City Safety Director O. Goldsmith and trustees of Bucyrus and Dallas township, represented Bucyrus.

The order for a disposal plant is pursuant to the finding by the Director of health Nov. 22, that sewage from the city, discharged into Sandusky River has so corrupted the stream as to give rise to foul and noxious odors and to conditions detrimental to health and comfort.

The directors' finding followed a complaint in writing signed by 77 qualified electors of Bucyrus township and 50 qualified electors of Dallas township which was received by the director of health Apr. 28, this year, from the clerk of the Board of deputy state supervisors of election in Crawford county; complaints in writing from the boards of trustees of Bucyrus and Dallas townships which were received at the health board's offices June 25, 1928, from the respective clerks of the boards submitted in accordance with the provisions of the general code of Ohio.

What action will be taken on the order has not been announced but it is expected that an appeal will be made or some means taken to develop technical methods of delay in carrying out the order. The city will at least attempt to delay carrying out the order until the school debt has been paid off, which will be in three or four years. The erection of a disposal plant would cost in the neighborhood of $300,000 it was announced.

Just Things

BY EDNA B. DUTTON

GREETING CARD

WITH the annual deluge of Christmas cards, each bearing its cheery greeting, about to descend upon the multitudes, some thrifty soul has connived the idea of putting them to further use by suggesting that they be made up into bright and colorful scrap books for the children to idle away a restless half hour on a rainy day or when colds or other minor ailments make of them temporary shut-ins. Not such a bad suggestion at that. But cards are cards and if they are kept for any great length of time and stored away in some book like "Lives of the Saints," "Hill's Manuel," or Will Carlton's works, the second and third generations may get a good haw-haw out of looking them over. Some old books afforded an interesting half hour and not a little fun out of their treasures for some explorers recently. Among the cards found was one of those old artful masterpieces with the name, heavily embellished with frills from the pen of an expert friller, carefully and coyly hidden under a cluster of vivid red roses. And the edge of the card, well, my dear, talk about scallops, it sure had them. The donor of the card has long since been gathered to his fathers and the card's resting place is undoubtedly a long way from the place where it last saw the light of day.

BEING HONEST

I WONDER what the situation would be at the end of just one day of everybody being absolutely honest-to-goodness truthful with everybody else. Imagine being out and out with the fact to one's dearest enemy that her hat was the last word in monstrosities and that the neighbor's youngsters were nothing short of disciples of his satanic majesty himself instead of the sugared announcement that the hat was "certainly the last word in smartness" and that the children were so adorable, "they had so much life." The clerk would probably fall in a faint if one were to be perfectly frank in saying that after getting the dishes home we didn't want them as badly as we have imagined, instead of announcing that Aunt Julia sent a set just like them, (which she probably knows is the bulloney,) and just what would the girl that serves us the three a day think if we were to tell her that the spuds weren't really cold but that we just had a grouch on and wanted to get it off our chest? Imagine telling the party at the other end of the line that if we heard of a talking marathon we certainly would enter their name, before hanging up the receiver, instead of afterwards, and admitting to auntie, who consciously objects to any game outside of jackstraws, that we really play for a little on the corner and let the legacy go hang? At least it would be different.

HOSE

CAN you imagine the girls of 1814 cavorting about the country with stockings below their knees? Shocking! It's the honest-to-goodness truth, or a celebrated author is a female Ananias. They were fashioned of heavy white silk, seamed by hand with elaborate clocking on each side. They were short, with a hem at the top through which white ribbon was run in lieu of a garter.

more than half she said, she was laughing so, or was she crying?

Several precious minutes were wasted while he darted nervously and fruitlessly through the empty offices, but all the girls had gone home, and he had almost despaired of finding anyone when he discovered little Mr. McMurtrie perched on the top rung of the stepladder in the law library, solemnly consulting the index of a thick, calfskin volume.

"Mr. McMurtrie! Miss Haines, she—"

Mr. McMurtrie, from the ladder, regarded the panting boy with magnificent disapproval. "The condition of these top shelves is shameful," he said. "Do you ever dust them? Look at my hands? Covered with filth. If you can't be trusted to look after these things, Barney, we'll have to get someone who can. It's shocking. Simply shocking."

There was more of it, along the same lines. Barney writhed unhappily until the lecture was ended, and Mr. McMurtrie, flushed and dusty, descended the ladder with the book in his hand. Then his careful mind turned back to the boy's entrance and he said, still fussing with his pocket handkerchief, "Now what was that you came to tell me?"

Feeling inexplicably foolish Barney stared at him a moment, and then burst out with—"It was Miss Haines—out in the main office. I'm afraid she's sick, and she won't stop laughing—"

"Laughing? Sick?"

"I don't know, but she's—"

"What made her laugh, and why call me because—"

"Because I think she's—her head or something. I told her about a letter a woman left for her, and she read it, and started laughing that way—"

"Hysterical, you mean?"

"Yes, sir. I think so—"

"You should have called someone at once!" Mr. McMurtrie said sourly. "It might be serious!"

But when he reached the main office, prepared to administer first aid to a pretty girl who had undoubtedly received tragic news of some kind, he found her deliberately powdering her nose at the small cabinet mirror inside a closet door. He halted, uncertain how to proceed. She had been crying, he could see that, so he advanced and said kindly, "No bad news, I hope, Miss Haines?"

He had to repeat it before she understood, and then she just nodded, and said in a harsh, scratchy voice that chilled all his sympathy, "Yes, but I'll get used to it," and didn't even look at him. It made Mr. McMurtrie feel very silly. He never liked the girl after that.

But Daphne hardly noticed who had spoken to her. She stood staring at the crumpled note in her hands. Then she straightened it all out again, and re-read it.

"When Crystal and Ralph are married . . ."

The man you love secretly engaged to another girl, making a fool of you all the time! Letting you think he loved you . . . and the man you trusted robbing him . . . and your own father refusing to ever see you again . . . .

And you have to go on living, with the world tumbled down around your ears, and all the meaning gone out of it. . . .

Some half forgotten words of Flora's . . . "You aren't the first one to fall for the wrong man. You'll get over it . . ."

Her head went up. She'd show 'em. . . . Show 'em if she cared! With fingers that had almost ceased trembling she put her step-mother's letter in her purse, in the inside pocket with her change. The lining was awfully worn * * * funny how linings wear out so soon!

Then she put on her hat, and the tan coat that she had once been so proud of, because Ralph liked it, and went into the street.

Through the glass front of the Empire cafeteria she could see the long line of patient "regulars" moving inch by inch toward the stacked trays. From chow-chow to ice cream the line wound its streamy, odorous way to the cashier's desk and ice water, and the crowded round tables. A longer line than usual, she noticed, and hardly any tables left. That was because she was later than usual, and she wanted to burst out laughing again, remembering why she was late, and what a silly thing it was to be pretending to eat, when you'd rather be dead, and the very thought of food made you sick.

But she ate her dinner, or some of it at least, and if she was ill, and her eyes were red on the street car coming home, nobody seemed to notice.

"Thank fortune for small favors," Crystal sighed when her mother was safely packed into the San Jose bus, and her fluttering handkerchief was lost in the outbound traffic. And then, lest Ralph, who had driven them to the stage terminal, should find her lacking in daughterly affection she added, "It's a load off my mind to have her going back home, because she isn't herself here in town. She just hates it, Ralph. I don't think she'd ever be happy away from that ranch. And besides—we don't understand each other."

"I know," he said sympathetically. "It's been hard for you, dear."

And that was the best she could get out of him, even after they were back in the dimly lit studio apartment, with the shades drawn, and the lamps lit, and her curly head on his shoulder.

"I'm so lonely," she sighed. "So sick of the same old thing. I get so discouraged. Nobody seems to care whether I fail, or succeed or what!"

"Even you, Ralph—you don't either."

"Don't I?" he asked dully.

"No you don't, Ralph, I have all kinds of patience, and I'm sympathetic and all that, but honestly, you're carrying this thing too far. Of course it's a shock and all that to find out somebody you've trusted has done you dirt, but now that it is all over, why fuss? And besides, they'll probably find Winters before he's had a chance to get away with much of it. They always get caught in the end—"

He laid his head in her lap and groaned. "You don't know what you're saying. He was my friend. The best friend I ever had, Crystal—"

"Yes, he sounds like a friend, I must say. Stealing from you! Twenty thousand cash, and a lot of bonds, or whatever it was—"

"You don't understand, Crystal. I—I never would have given him up. I didn't mean to. Greely—Greely forced me. If I had not thrown myself on Greely's mercy the whole thing would have gone to smash . . . He took a dirty advantage, Crystal . . . the hound! He . . . had some facts . . . I had to give Allan up, or . . . take the blame myself . . . one or the other. He forced me."

His shoulders were shaking. Queer choking noises . . . was the silly thing crying? Crystal's hand patted the bowed head in her lap, but her nose wrinkled in disgust. A man . . . carrying on like that? A little wrinkle of concentration gathered between her straight, pencilled brows. Had she been wasting her time?

"You're all worn out," she crooned. "A trip to Europe, like you were talking about the other night . . ."

"Great Heavens, Crystal, I can't go now!"

"You mean . . . that you can't afford it now, dear?"

He never knew what hung on his answer. He just said quickly, from the depths of his despair, "Oh, it isn't the money. Six months from now I'll have forgotten that loss. What's twenty then? It just came at a bad time, that's all. But I can't go now—with him gone. I'll have to stick to the job. . . . Oh, Crystal . . . if I didn't have you to talk to, I'd go mad!"

"You'll always have me, dear," she murmured, but she was nervous. She thought she heard footsteps outside the door.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY at last. I always get up as soon as me and Jubilee wake up on Saturday, because it is a holiday and a fella wants all he can get of a holiday. And I had got my work all done except straining the milk when Younius and Feeble and Maggie and Mealy came bustin out of our kitchen, and Younius hollered, "Thomas Aristides, know what?" and I said, "What?" and she said, "We are all going to get a Christmas Tree for the school," and I looked surprized and asked her who said so, an she said she had thought it up all herself and didn't I want to? So I told her I did, and we went in the house all of us, and my mother said if we would wait till the grownups got through eating she would make all of us some pancakes, so we did and she did. Mealy sot next to me, an after awhile we all stopped eating to listen to Mealy. It sounded like a horse coming own a muddy road, so she got more pancakes than the rest of us. Nibs told her she had so many they showed on her. And she felt of her stummick, and then told me to feel of it, and I got red and told her to go chase herself.

Then we all went out and I put a bridal on our horse and me and Younius and Feeble and Maggie got on and left Mealy to come with the bunch or stay home. And we started out and they came trailin along, and then we made the horse go so fast and got way out in the country. The country looked fine because it had not all been tracked up like the town everywhere, and we kept looking for the tree we wanted till we got clear to Rocky River before we found it. Then we remembered that we didn't have the axe, so we waited for the bunch to come up, and none of them had it: so then the Lost Bag of Tripe said he would go back and get it for us, and he got on the horse and galloped away.

We got some dry branches and made a fire and waited for the Lost Bag of Tripe till almost milking time, and he had not came, and we was all mighty tired when we got home, and our horse was in the stall, and our axe hadn't been touched. I picked up the Lost Bag of Tripe's hoss and his mother answered and called him to the phone, and I said, "I thought you was going to bring the tree and he said, "Why I was, but I couldn't, when it came time to start home I found I had left my axe at the house, and I couldn't get another one, because the stores were all closed, and I had to wait till this morning to get one, and I got it and I'm coming right over." And I said, "Well, you better hurry up, because we have got to decorate it and trim it and have it ready for the entertainment tonight," and he said, "Oh, I forgot all about that, I'll be right over," and

FORD SAYS POPULAR PRICED PLANE NEAR

Will Be Within Easy Reach of Average Man in Ten Years

Washington, Dec. 15—A popular priced airplane will probably be within easy reach of the average man within 10 years, Henry Ford predicted today.

The automobile magnate, who is here to attend the International Civil Aeronautics conference, declared progress in aviation is limited only by the speed of power development.

"Technical difficulties do not present the serious problem at present," said Ford. "Increase of power per weight unit is the gauge of progress in aeronautics.

"The next step unquestionably is the oil burning engine.

"During the past 25 years, since Orville Wright made the first flight at Kitty Hawk, aviation has advanced tremendously. During the next 25 it will advance equally as far. The popular priced plane will be within reach, I would say, in 10 years."

His own plants are now chiefly concerned with the larger planes at present, however, Ford said. Until power is increased the small plane will be impractical for large scale production.

In the large plane field, he said, the world may soon see wings on dirigibles, and airplanes so large that there will be passenger space within the wings.

Ford entered the National Chamber of Commerce building with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. The transatlantic flier also predicted great strides just around the corner in the field of aviation, but declined to be drawn into a specific discussion.

52 CHILDREN TO BE PARTY GUESTS

Store and Theater Managements Plan County Home Christmas Program

Plans for a Christmas day party for children of the Marion County Children's home, sponsored by Tender's Candyland, 142 West Center st., with the co-operation of the Palace theater management are rapidly nearing completion.

Present plans are to bring the children to Tender's Candyland for a turkey dinner at 11 o'clock on Christmas day. The store will be closed almost the entire day in order that full attention may be given to the party.

After dinner the children will be taken to the Palace theater for the matinee. Seats will be reserved at the performance and will be donated by the Palace theater.

Another party at Tender's Candyland during which gifts will be distributed to the children will follow the matinee. An attempt will be made to make the presents as personal as possible.

Although there are 60 children in the home at present only 52 will attend the party. Eight of the children are in the nursery and are considered too young to go to the party.

VARSITY IS HELD TO CLOSE SCORE UNTIL LAST FEW MINUTES

Gunder, Tobin Lead Saints to 16-10 Win with Six Points

CARRYING all the color that usually attends a clash between varsity and graduate quintets, the young Irish of St. Mary's last night defeated the Alumni at the Y. M. C. A., 16 to 10.

The game was a toss-up from start to finish with th varsity never holding a safe lead. At the end of the first half the score stood 8 to 6 in favor of the regulars. Until the last six minutes of play the varsity failed to score in the second half. At the end of that time the Alumni held a 10 to 8 lead and things looked mighty bad until the Saints picked up again getting away to a safe lead.

Gunder and Tobin were tied for big scoring honors with six points each. Gunder scored three baskets while the latter star counted two buckets and a like number of free throws. Ballenger tossed three fouls and Bintz one for the balance of the scoring.

No Alumni Stars

IT was beyond the Alumni to star as far as scoring goes. Hogan, Andrews, McAndrews and Kerrigan each counted one basket, Foul goals were scored by Burke and Cramer.

Next week the Saints will take on the Strong St. Anthony's quintet of Kenton. The S. A. I. boys have been making a clean sweep of high schools in Hardin county and expect to keep their slate clean on the local floor.

ALTHOUGH only three games were played in the Marion county high school basketball league last night, excitement and plenty of it was furnished by games in the west division.

A well earned 24 to 15 victory over Morral gave the Green Camp boys the lead in the west section. Previously to last night's affair the two teams had been tied for first place, each having won a game. Porter again was in the limelight for the victors, scoring 11 of Green Camp's points. Heller and Brown, each scored six points for Morral. In the girls' fray Morral turned the tables, winning by a 13-to-7 score.

Prospect stepped into a tie with Morral for second place by giving LaRue a 33 to 18 trouncing. Hare was high man for Prospect with 15 markers from seven goals and a foul. Allen scored 11 of LaRue's 18 points. LaRue girls evened up matters with a 14 to 8 win over Prospect.

Only one league game was played in the west section of the league. That contest found the Kirkpatrick squads inking a double header from Claridon. The boys won 18 to 15 in a red hot battle while the Kirkpatrick girls had a tough fight in winning 22 to 14.

In non-league affairs, Martel journeyed to Iberia to be handed double licking. However both games were exceptionally close, the boys losing 16 to 15 while the girls were dropped 9 to 5.

Pleasant split even in its contests last night. The Harding Vocationals were stopped 20 to 19 in a game in which Pleasant lead all the way. In a nip and tuck battle, the Midway girls won a 24 to 21 argument with the Pleasant sextet. The Midway team showed up the best in the second and third quarters.

Y-INDUS QUINTET CHALKS UP VICTORY OVER KENTON, 22-7

Osterholt Stars as Marion Club Wins Easy Game

BREAKING a long string of defeats piled up in other games this season the Y-Indus cagers of Marion last night outclassed the Kenton high school reserves in a game played on the Harding county court. The local quintet won, 22 to 7.

It was a trick easily turned for the Marion basketeers to walk away with Kenton. After the first quarter the Reserve aggregation did not have a chance. In the first period Marion was held to two points while Kenton went scoreless. A lone basket was scored by the logers while the "Y" team was running up eight markers in the second period.

A brilliant offensive drive netted Marion 10 points in the third stanza while Kenton was collecting one basket. The pace of the visitors was slowed up in the final period with only four points being scored.

Osterholt continued to keep in the limelight of the Y-Indus scorers. He gathered in five buckets for a total of 10 points while Church, Kerr and Cram each scored four points. Elliott failed to make a basket.

With a total of four points to his credit, Russel led the Kenton quintet in scoring. Smith counted a basket and Harding a foul. The lineups:

LOCALS DEFEAT WEST, 20 TO 10

Marion Shows Fair Form in Taking Contest from Columbus High School Quintet; Gillie and McAninch Stand Out in Red and Black Victory

By KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

SOMETIMES basketball games are won for no other reason than there is nothing else to be done. That was the case with the Red and Black of Harding high school last night when it won the initial cage tilt of the season defeating Columbus West in Star auditorium, 20 to 10.

It was the only thing that Harding could possibly have done. There was no chance to lose against such a team that played under the colors of Columbus West and as Coach Bobby Compton is still at a loss to know the real strength of his quintet. Harding outclassed its opponents so far that the Columbus team never had even the slightest chance. Still the Red and Black only scored 20 points in the game so from the standpoint of fans it was quite a contest.

Players Lack Experience

HOWEVER, the smallness of the score perhaps can be attributed to the inexperience of the local cagers. Only one veteran saw action in the game. The remainder of the players started a game for the first time as regulars. They were very young, accounting for the large number of shots missed.

This and that may be said

TRAFFIC BLOCKED

Faulty Switch Holds Train on Crossing More Than Half Hour

Traffic on North State st. was unavoidably held up by an Erie freight train for more than 30 minutes early last night. According to reports this morning the train was blocked by a piece of iron which stuck in a switch. The faulty switch was not discovered until after part of the train had passed over it. The iron, it is said, caught in the switch from a Big Four freight which had passed over the track shortly before the Erie train approached.

CAMBRDGE POLCE HUNT "HAIR PIN" BURGLAR

Cambridge, Mass.—Although somewhat accustomed to strange occurrences, the natives of Cambridge were more than mildly interested when a hunt started for a "hairpin burglar."

The name comes from the fact that the burglar gained entrance to a home by picking a lock with a bent hairpin, found at the threshold. Two other robberies were effected by the same method, police said.

NEW ROAD SWEEPER PICKS UP ALL TACKS

Enid, Okla.—Motorists hail with delight a new magnetic road sweeper recently put into service by C. H. Rightmire, division engineer of the Oklahoma highway commission. The sweeper picked up more than 50 pounds of metal when used on a short test in this city. Further tests will soon be made, it was said.

"LOG" VIOLINS

Ancient Spruce Rotting in Forest Used for Fiddles.

Portland, Ore. — A spruce log which apparently has lain for more than two centuries in the upper Quinalt forest may be used in making violins. Publicity given the ancient spruce when it was discovered recently on the ranch of H. E. Voorhies, near Hoquiam, Wash., has attracted the attention of at least one violin maker.

Although spruce is not known as particularly resistant to decay, the big log, when discovered, had but a thin layer of rotted wood around the apparently sound core. It is reported to be in almost the same condition as a newly felled tree, while at the same time, huge trunks which have overgrown it, testify to its extreme age.

Samples of the wood are being forwarded to Clyde Hicks of Nampa, Idaho, who requested several pieces for experimentation in violin tops.

As wood used in making violin parts is held to improve sound reproducing qualities with age, it is believed possible that the spruce may prove valuable in making fine instruments.

PRUSSIAN COW SETS NEW BUTTER RECORD

Konigsberg — "Peluschke," the record-making cow of Palmicken, East Prussia, has been outdone by "Dahlie," a cow owned by Herr von Batocki of Bledau, also in East Prussia.

"Dahlie's" record for one year is 25,720 pounds of milk with 4.36 per cent of butter fat, and a production of 1,258.5 pounds of butter.

This means a daily production of more than 70.4 pounds of milk and 3.44 pounds of butter for the 365 days. "Peluschke's" record was 25,018.5 pounds of milk and 1,120 pounds of butter in one year.

INDIANA FARMERS ASK CITY INCOME TAX LAW

Indianapolis, Ind. — Contending that farmers of Indiana are paying an undue share of expenses of government, part of which should be borne by city dwellers, officials of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation will endeavor to obtain passage of a State income tax law during the meeting of the State Legislature, which starts in January.

The farmers say that tax assessors levy tribute on real estate, while city dwellers, of whom many thousands own only a small amount of personal property, escape heavy taxation.

LINER AGROUND IN CORK HARBOR

After White Star liner Celtic (above) struck a rock 300 yards from entrance to Cork harbor, order to clear away passengers was given by captain on bridge. So many time 500 men, women and children were taken off by three tenders.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Dec 15—Despite the fact that the only feeling over the government crop report in evidence yesterday was that the figures would show little change, evening up transactions were responsible for most of the exceptionally light trade in grains Prices were erratic in a narrow range

Wheat ruled a shade higher most of the session Local sentiment was bearish and this element sold, but shorts and commission houses were buyers on all the slight dips Foreign markets were firm and slightly higher

Corn, too, was higher, but was irregular under the influence of further changing between the December and the May Locals sold the near and bought the deferred, while cash interests did the opposite An easier demand in the cash market brought out scattered selling, but the breaks uncovered fair buying support

Winnipeg Also Up

Wheat finished the session with net advances of ⅛@⅜c Corn was ⅛@⅜c higher, oats were ⅛c lower to ⅜c higher and rye was ⅛c lower to ⅝c higher Winnipeg wheat futures closed ⅛@⅜c higher

Those of the trade who remained on the floor to receive the government report called the reduction of wheat of a little over 1,000,000 bu a setoff, and the reduction of 54,000-000 bu in the corn yield as very bullish

The following is quoted from a Winnipeg wire to James E Bennett & Co 'Market opens up a trifle on the higher cables but there is no particular buying and prices are back around yesterdays level The crowd are all disgusted with the short side and now feel if the market would not go down when the movement was on that something is going to happen now to put it up The fact remains that our wheat is piled up everywhere, with only limited business in low grades. See nothing in the market

Not only does this typify the situation in the market at Winnipeg, but it is an excellent description of conditions on the local exchange With no aggressive buying and with aggressive selling dying out by degrees, trade becomes lighter and lighter and price swings both ways narrower and narrower

Corn in the early trade started up rapidly following the purchase of some of the December by the leading seller of the previous day. However, the higher price attracted liquidation in the nearby delivery, and with this and the changing operations the market weakened Receipts were fairly heavy and the demand was not as urgent in the sport market.

There were further reports of re-sellers afloat and abroad, but this was offset by indications that there is still a large short interest in Gulf corn.

CHRISTMAS TREE SALE UNDER WAY

Arrival of Yule Decoration Is Feature of Week on Local Market

Arrival of Christmas trees on the majority of the retail produce markets of the city and also the arrival of Florida oranges were the main market features the last week here.

Christmas trees being sold here this season are unusually good Limbs are well covered with needles and what is still more important to those who like to have their Christmas decorations about the house for two or three weeks, the needles are strong and tough and likely to hold intact for an unusually long period.

The Yuletide decoration around which either Santa Claus or father and mother arrange the presents on the night before Christmas is being sold here at prices varying from 50 cents to $15. Price depends upon size and quality.

Only 10 variations in price quotations were reported here during the last week by retail merchants dealing in fruits, vegetables, meats and provisions. Increases and decreases in price were exactly even, five of each being recorded.

Seven of the price changes were reported in fruits, three of the changes were increases and three were decreases. One change was recorded in vegetables and it was an increase. [illegible] in the quotations this week.

Marion Basketball Team Is Now Organized

Marion basketball rooms have been blocked off and the Marion basketball team is now organized for the season. Practice sessions will be held every night in the week except Saturday. Manager Ralph Hoffman announced today. Large scores, always featured the older game. Now a team able to score at least 20 points each game will win most of its contests.

Members Not Supporting

IF the membership of the Eagles lodge would support its team Star auditorium could not hold all the fans The attendance at both games so far this season did not total more than 500 at the most.

The Eagles lodge boasts of a membership of around 1,600. Suppose that just one-half the members would bring their families to see the Eagles play each week. That would mean around 1,500 paid admissions to the game Under the present circumstances the writer would say 10 per cent, placing the figure plenty high, of the Eagles members are not attending.

By getting a little loyalty into the lodge membership, the Eagles might make this season a financial success. Until this is done the writer is afraid that the team will go on losing money and quit playing before the season is half over. That's something to think about.

STEAM SHOVEL TO PLAY ELECTRIC FIVE

Contest Headlines Industrial League Bill on Monday Night

The Steam Shovel will play the C, D & M Kappas,

That is the outstanding feature of the Industrial league games to be played in Star auditorium Monday night marking the opening of the second round. Titular aspirations for the first round will be at stake when these two teams meet In opening games each quintet won by one sided scores and their fray Monday should go down in league history.

The opening game at 7:15 o'clock is scheduled between the Business College Mallcable and the Power-Hocking agreation. The Power team made a poor showing in games last week and have been strengthened by the addition of men from the Polak Steel Co. This change is expected to place them in a position ranking with the best of the teams.

Bohannan-Excavator will play the final game against the Osgood five. The Bohannan team has added two new men to its lineup and should give the Osgood a good race for their money.

about the faults of the individual players and of the team as a whole. The writer believes although there was little in last night's encounter to substantiate the fact, that Coach Compston has the material from which to work out a fair aggregation that will do credit to the local school during the balance of the season. Individual stars are few and far between but the material is far from what one might consider mediocre.

It was the defense rather than the offense of Harding that stood out in the game During the first half Columbus was unable to score a single field goal. West went scoreless in the first quarter and managed to score a foul in the second frame. In the first 10 minutes of play Harding scored 13 point

Only 2 Field Goals Scored

IN the last half Columbus managed to score two field goals, Deshler and Larkin having this honor. The balance of the team's 10 points came from free throws. A large number of substitutions in the last half cut down the scoring power of the local aggregation.

Gillis led in the scoring with a total of 10 points from four baskets and two fouls. McAninch was the outstanding figure in the defense activities of the Marion club.

Walker and Roush give promise of developing into a fine pair of forwards. Castner is making his first strong bid for a varsity berth getting into the starting lineup as a guard.

The lineups:

Light Up Those Other Windows!

In a great many homes there are excellent rooms which are very seldom, and sometimes never, used.

Perhaps your home is not so fully occupied as it used to be—or as you expect it to be in the future. Maybe you are holding on to a larger property than you now need while awaiting a better time to sell it.

Whatever the cause of the empty rooms may be, why not let desirable boarders fill one or more of them and bring that feeling of life and activity to the entire household? Why not increase your own income and at the same time provide a real home for someone who will appreciate it—someone whose occasional company you will enjoy?

It won't be long before lights begin to shine cheerfully out of once darkened windows after you prepare a complete and careful description of these spare rooms and phone it to 2314, The Marion Star Classified Department.

You can depend on the "Rooms for Rent" column in the Classified Section!

NO ALARM SHOWN IN FLU SITUATION

None of Local Cases Regarded as Serious, Health Officer States

Reports regarding progress of the mild form of influenza which is claiming many victims in Marion and vicinity remained unchanged today. No additional survey had been made in the city by Dr. W. J. Weiser, city health commissioner, so that no new information has been obtained. Schools being closed today, conditions there also remained unchanged.

The country districts and small towns of Marion county are apparently almost free from the ailment, according to figures based upon a survey made yesterday and the day before by Dr. N. Siffrit, county health commissioner, in response to a request for a report of influenza conditions in Marion county received from the state board of health.

Basis of Report

Basing his report upon the number of absentees reported at the various schools of the county, Dr. Siffrit believes that there is little influenza in the county outside of Marion, except possibly in Prospect.

None of the schools excepting Prospect reported an unusual amount of absences. At Prospect 20 children were reported as absent although it was not known whether this condition resulted from influenza. At Waldo two absentees as a result of influenza were reported, one being in Waldo village and one in the township.

A majority of the schools reported an unusually good attendance record for the last month. This report coincides with that received at the offices of the county superintendent of schools.

Reports in City

Between 100 and 150 cases of influenza were reported in the city by Dr. Weiser yesterday. At that time he stated that none of them were serious.

Reports of an unusual number of absentees were received only from Central Junior high school yesterday, 113 being listed there. At Vernon Heights 34 were reported.

DOCTOR OFFERED $1,000 IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Brookline, N. H.—A resident doctor is worth just $1,000 to this town, or at least that is what they are offering Dr. George Hilton, of Milford, if he will locate here.

The last resident doctor was Charles Holcombe, who died nine years ago, and since then the populace of Brookline has had a hard time getting a doctor in the winter time. For the past nine years only one doctor has been able to get through on horseback in the winter. Rather than face another such winter, citizens, at a special town meeting, voted to give Dr. Hilton $1,000 in addition to what he makes in office practice and home calls, if he will reside here. Dr. Hilton has been coming here twice a week since last May.
